Connect with a Global Endocrine Network...

Our new website is modern and user friendly and utilizes the latest social networking tools. Through the use of new technology we hope to encourage international exchange not only between our member countries but related organizations and individuals involved in the field of endocrinology.

You will find information on our latest national, regional and international activity as well as detailed information on our member countries, each with their own profile page. Whether you're a tweeter, blogger or facebooker you can connect to our global network via www.isendo.org.

The new site is constantly evolving and will assist ISE with its mission to be the global coordinator of Endocrinology. Take a look at www.isendo.org we welcome constructive feedback from Nature readers.
